Siuslaw Beetles Stand Rooted to the Ground.

A bug which has completely puzzled all Siuslaw entomologists and which looks as if it might have grown like a plant out of the ground, has been discovered by Carl Miller of Tillamook lake.

The first specimen of this remarkable beetle seen by Miller was standing perfectly still in an attitude of expectant movement; but as he continued to observe it, it did not move. Finally, thinking it dead, he started to pick it up but found its six feet so firmly imbedded in the earth that a considerable pull was required to lift it.

He has since seen several and in each case they have been standing erect and immovable, their legs buried in the ground. He thinks it probable that they die on their feet and so remain standing like their own statues, but he cannot understand why in every case their feet are so firmly fastened to the ground, not infrequently pulling loose from the body when one tries to uproot them.

The insect is about half an inch long and has noticeably long feelers.—Register special.

JUDGE URGES PLAYGROUND

Ben Lindsey of Denver Says Keep Boys off of Railroad Tracks and Out of Theft.

(Judge Lindsey in Denver Post.)

Of course it is a bad thing for our boys to be running on the railroad tracks. It is only a short step to stealing from the box cars, and then perhaps from the corner grocery, and finally to "tapping the till." Such is the progress of neglected childhood. A public playground will take care of that natural curiosity and disposition to play and do things and would save the railroad companies thousands of dollars annually they spend to keep boys in the cities from making their property their playground.

I know a railroad official who told me that they had dispensed with one expensive officer in one district after a scheme of personal work and helpfulness through the public playground had been built up. It had directed into better channels the otherwise misdirected energies of these children. A gentleman in one city of fifty thousand told me recently that the sixty boys who had robbed the box car within the short space of one month were furnishing his road a more serious problem than the question of railroad rates that was then pending in the legislature.

I once talked with a young murderer—19 years of age. He was then in the shadow of the gallows. He told me his lawlessness started down among the railroad tracks, where he went to play. It was a powerful magnet for curiosity when there was none other.

And all this is aside from the wholesome character building and the effect, both morally and physically, upon the average boy, who has the advantages of clean, well-directed, helpful play that is now to be applied alone in many cities through the public playground. I know a city of less than 300,000 inhabitants in which there were over 2000 arrests among the boys in one year. I walked into one of the courts of that city and found the time of the jury, the judge and the counsel taken up in trying a boy of 12 for throwing a brick at a citizen. The next day I met the boy in the bullpen amid hardened criminals. He had chains about his waist and knees. I asked the boy why he threw the brick. He said: "I never meant no harm, mister; we were just playing." I saw the miserable shack and the crowded district where he lived.

Can the boy be blamed if he continued to throw the bricks? Could we be blamed if we shed a tear at the absurdity and injustice of it all? Can we be blamed if we turn from the act of the boy to cry out against the shameful criminal state.

This child is a wonderful human creature—a divine machine. We have much to expect from him, and when the returns depends upon what we give.

We shall suffer with him whether we will or no, or we do not share his burdens. Let us not weary of the struggle till the child gets a square deal; and until he does, we cannot have and do not deserve the glorious manhood, that splendid citizenship that will come alone from duty done in childhood's sacred cause.

We of the children's courts are optimistic about it because we see perhaps with clearer vision the most hopeful sign in this country. It is that awakened conscience of the state to its own responsibility for the child—that in caring for the child the state is simply caring for itself.

We have ceased in this country to question the duty of the state. It must provide free education and pass compulsory school and child labor laws and establish playgrounds, trade schools and juvenile courts, for the state suffers just as far as the child is ignorant and weak.

We do not need more to emphasize our responsibility. This nation must take care of its children. From duty it cannot and it shall not. It is only true to itself just as it is true to its children.

Highway Change Opposed.

Eighty-five leading citizens of Coos County met at luncheon April 23 and caused the good roads situation in Southern Oregon. Post speeches were full of business, chief topic was the tentative plan to change the Pacific Highway from Southern Oregon to Eastern Oregon.

To secure further recognition of the protesting against any change in the Pacific Highway are to be forwarded to representatives in Oregon and to commercial organizations.

It is further proposed to obtain views of the Pacific Highway from Josephine county and forward with the resolutions.

Big Business at Treasurer's Office.

Last month was the biggest month from the standpoint of business had in the county treasurer's office Lane County. Treasurer Taylor put out warrants the sum of $11,000 which was mostly in small amounts of them being as low as $1. The first half of the state tax amount to $22,450 has been paid to the total amount of money paid to the office for the month was $33,450. The big business required very accurate bookkeeping to keep it straight.—Register.
