Farmers who are interested in growing corn are invited to try seed furnished free by the O. W. R. & N. Co. Twelve-pound lots will be given out, being about enough to plant one acre, to all farmers applying for it. This is acclimated seed and C. L. Smith, agriculturist for that line, maintains that Oregon can be made one of the foremost corn states.

SEVERAL NEW ROADS WILL LEAD INTO THE CITY

crosses the tracks, a half mile of road has been purchased through the D. B. Burton place, thus shortening the road and at the same time doing away with two crossings.

It is practically certain that the highway will be changed to come through the city from the north over a highly improved street. With the improvements to be made by Douglas County in the Pass Creek canyon district, automobile tourists will find the trip through this section a much pleasanter one than it has been in the past. Unless the highway south from Main Street through the city is improved by property owners, it is also quite probable that a road will be built through from Sixth Street to meet the piece of the highway to be built by the county, which will give a perfect highway into and out of the city from either direction.

County Commissioner Hawley, at the meeting of the Commercial Club Monday night, also announced that something would be done with the Row River road where it enters the city around Knox hill. The improvement of this piece of road would have been completed last year but for the dispute over city boundary lines. It is the worst piece of road leading into the city and at the same time the most used.

The improvement of three-quarters of a mile of the Pacific Highway north of the city and extensive improvements on the South Sixth Street road were announced some time ago.

EVERY CITIZEN HAS PART TO PLAY IN PLANS

had obeyed, he found that he did not need the help of Hercules.

A joint committee, acting under authority of the Cottage Grove Grange and the Cottage Grove Commercial Club, has, at some little expense of time and work formulated a plan by which the people of this community may provide for themselves a cannery which shall be all their own—a cannery which nobody else may appropriate or control.

In order that every farmer may have a share in this organization, the price of the shares has been placed at $5. In order that a few stockholders may not secure control, the number of shares which any one man may own is limited to three. There can, therefore, be no freezing out of the many by the few. In order that there may be perfect equality as to voting rights, each share holder is permitted to cast the same number of votes—just one. In order that this stock might be as widely distributed as possible, and many persons as possible interested in the enterprise, the price has been small and the number of shares large—600 shares, amounting to $3,000. Our friends at Cottage Grove have a somewhat different course, and alone can tell which has won wisely. They have made the price share the same as ours, $5, with a share number to one man of 25 or $100 against $15 from one share. In order that the people of the valley and the people of the city may make common cause in this enterprise, each is equally eligible to be a stockholder. In the opinion of the tance. In reality the interests of two classes are identical. The two communities—a country community and a village community—are indivisible, the people of the Grove, whether living inside the corporation limits.

When one of our farmers does not say, "I'm from the about Cottage Grove," but "I'm of Cottage Grove" while he is living on his farm. Here is a common interests meet and common. Another thing. This enterprise has as many different persons as financially interested in the enterprise for the common good purpose behind it. It is an experiment; but it is an experiment worth object. It ought to deepen our feeling and to make us a more united people. The very logic of the situation tends in one direction late and separate us from one another. As we are drawn up these valleys we find walls rising around to divide and to make of us little munities by ourselves. While the advantage of drawing a line nearer together, as a whole people cuts us apart.

But look at it from the other side. Look down the valleys as well as up. As it was said of old, "All roads lead to Rome," so we can say, "All roads lead to Cottage Grove." Let us give it. Let us give of our time and to build up a common interest in common center. Then we shall find to be increasingly a united people with common interest in one another. Selfishness shall give way to altruism and our happiness shall come a common fund.

If this enterprise which we have hand is to be carried to success by each one awakening to his individual duty. Convinced, we doubt are of its supreme importance we ought to crowd in here with subscriptions. Too much burden upon a few if each subscriber visited individually. In that case would have been easier to have the amount in larger subscriptions. But would it have been as well as concerned? I think not. For with many, each doing his modest share, each man who is sure most can needs to take the limit of three shares. It means a sacrifice—a good deal for many, so does it to buy seed to plant out. We do not on that account let them unplanted, or expect some one to plant them for us. Say not, "Others will do it if we don't." Very likely they will—and own it too—and to that own us likewise. T.
